JOURNALMIND

Emotional Analysis Report

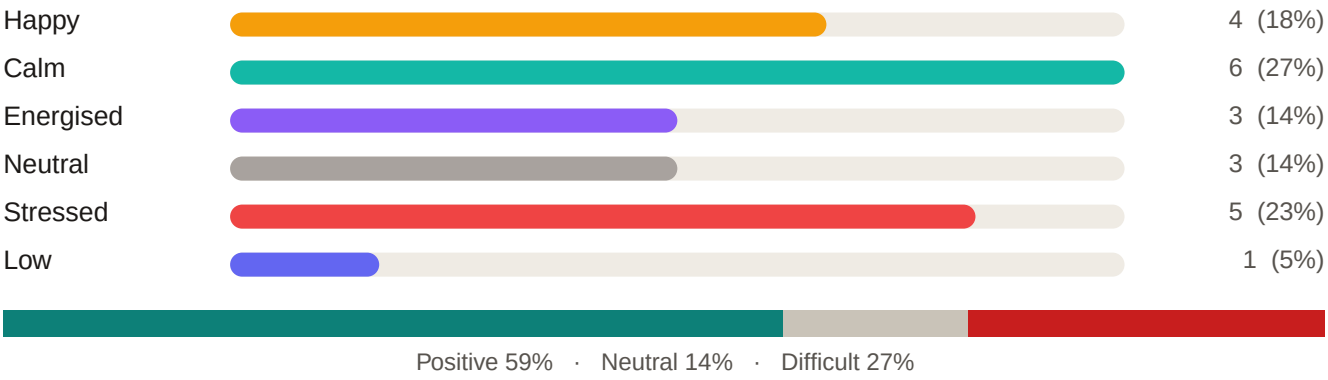
Riya · Last 30 days (11 Oct 2026 – 9 Nov 2026) · Generated 9 Nov 2026

ENTRIES	DAYS JOURNALED	POSITIVE ENTRIES	MOOD TREND
22	22	59%	Lifting

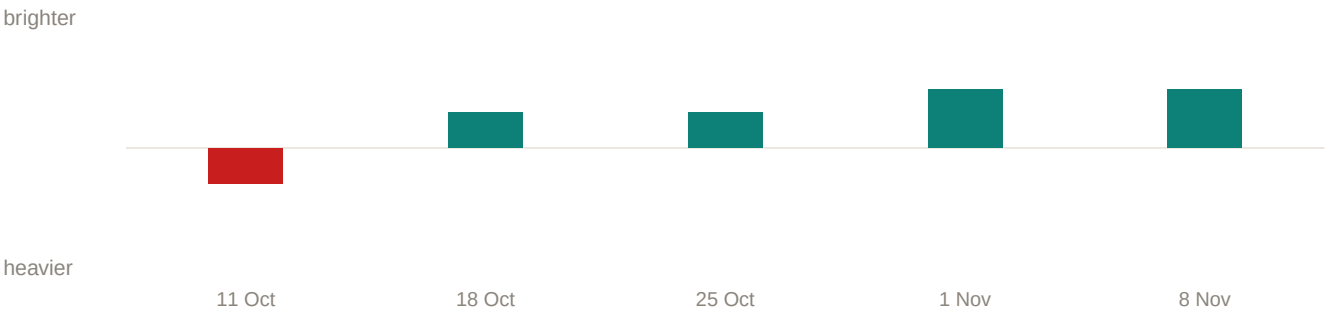
In brief

Over the last 30 days you wrote 22 entries on 22 days. You most often felt calm (27% of entries). 59% of entries were positive (happy, calm or energised), 14% neutral and 27% difficult (stressed or low). Your mood has been lifting: recent entries are noticeably brighter than earlier ones in this period. Mondays tended to be your brightest days and Sundays the hardest. Entries about #family were more often difficult, while #friends tended to lift you. In your own words, joy and calm came up most.

Mood mix



Mood over time (average per week)

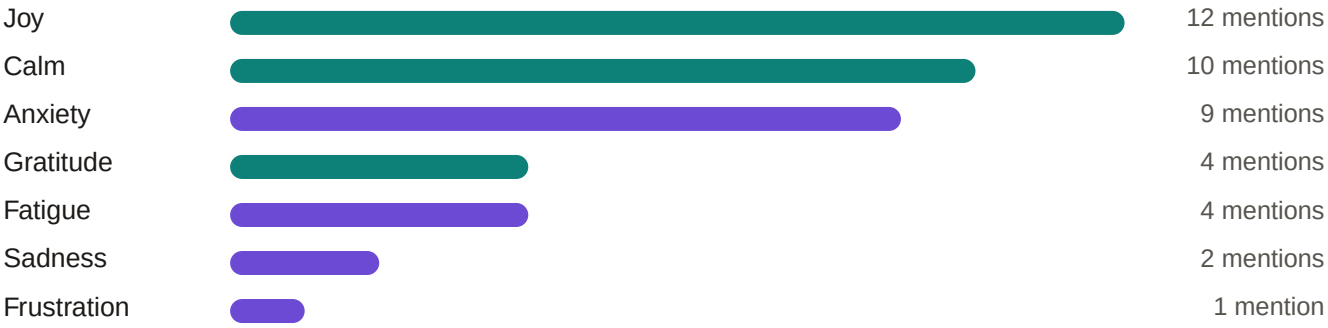


Each bar is the average self-reported mood for that period (Happy +2, Calm/Energised +1, Neutral 0, Stressed -1, Low -2).

Patterns

- Brightest day: Monday (average +1.2). Hardest day: Sunday (average -0.6).
- Tends to lift your mood: #friends (2 entries), #running (4 entries), health (4 entries).
- Often comes with difficult feelings: #family (2 entries).

Emotions in your words



Counted from emotion words in your entries (e.g. "worried", "grateful", "tired").

Moments that stood out

BRIGHTEST MOMENT · 19 Oct 2026 · Happy

Dinner with friends — "Laughed so much tonight. Grateful for these people, it was wonderful."

HARDEST MOMENT · 16 Oct 2026 · Low

"Missed my sister's call and felt lonely this evening. The flat is too quiet."

Gentle suggestions

1. #family often comes with difficult feelings. Next time, try writing down one part of it that is within your control.
2. Sundays look tougher. Plan something restorative for that day, or do a short check-in the evening before.
3. Your mood is improving. Write down what has been different recently so you can come back to it.